HAWES TO INVADE NORTHWEST MISSOURI TUESDAY.

BIG MEETING HERE

Mrs. Hawes Will Come Too—Large Delegations From Surrounding Counties Are Expected.

Charles F. McCaffrey, chairman of the County Democratic Central Committee has received word that Mrs. Harry B. Hawes will accompany her husband to Maryville next Tuesday for the big Democratic rally. Mr. Hawes will be unable to again return to Northwest Missouri during the campaign, as his other speaking engagements will consume all of his time from now until the election.

"We feel that we are particularly fortunate in inducing Major Hawes to come to Nodaway County," Mr. McCaffrey said this morning. "We earnestly hope that a big crowd from all over the northwestern counties will be here, as Mr. Hawes' address will be of particular importance to the people of Northwest Missouri. Men and women of every political affiliation should make a special endeavor to be present at this meeting.

"The issues of the campaign are sharply drawn. As I view the situation, the forthcoming election shall determine whether or not the East, with its large manufacturing establishments, reaping the reward of the protective tarriff, shall continue supremacy in this country, or whether the great agricultural West, which is now, and has been for the past several years under Republican rule, paying the penalty of the protective tariff, shall have some voice in the affairs of government.

"This issue, along with the many others, will be discussed by Major Hawes, and for this reason, if for no other, it is desired that every farmer in Northwest Missouri hear Major Hawes discuss this one issue, which is so vital to their happiness and prosperity.

"Major Hawes is a member of the American Legion; is a strong supporter of the goods road movement—in fact, is the author of the good roads law which we now have in Missouri. He is a strong supporter of the program of utilizing the great water ways of our country for the transportation of goods, which will, in a great measure, relieve the present high freight rates. In fact, he stands for the things which will make for a greater Missouri. He is an able man and equipped, physically and mentally, to serve well his country.

"In my judgment," Mr. McCaffrey concluded, "he will be elected this fall."

Young Man Charged With Attacking Girl

Virnie King, Formerly Near Pickering, Is Arrested In Wisconsin.—Waives Preliminary Here.

Brought back by Sheriff Lowell B. Campbell from Prairie du Chien, Wis., Virnie King, a former resident of the Pickering vicinity, waived a preliminary hearing today before Justice J. H. Sayler and was bound over to the Circuit Court on a charge of criminal assault upon Leonia Cox, a 17-year-old girl of Parnell.

King is about 28 years old. His bond was fixed at $1,000, which he was unable to give, and he was committed to the county jail to await trial.

The alleged offense is said to have occurred last March. King left the county and was not located by the sheriff and prosecuting attorney until a few days ago, when he was arrested in the Wisconsin town at their request. Sheriff Campbell went after the prisoner personally.

ORGANIZE TO DEFEAT NO. 4

TEMPORARY COMMITTEE HERE IS HEADED BY LAMKIN.

A MEETING OCTOBER 7

Permanent Organization Then Will Be Formed, Extending Into Each Township.

A temporary county organization to conduct a campaign against Proposal No. 4, to repeal the state's prohibition enforcement act, was formed here yesterday when Judge W. K. James of Andrew County, one of the "dry" leaders visited Maryville.

Uel W. Lamkin, president of the State Teachers College, is chairman of the temporary organization, Fred R. Wolfers is vice-president, and Mrs. Charles Gaugh is secretary.

This organization will call a meeting on the afternoon of Thursday, October 7, and a permanent organization will be perfected, extending into each township. To the township organizations will be sent literature against the proposal repeal, and they will be called upon also to get out the dry vote.

"Although the proposal, publicly at least, is opposed by practically all our political leaders and by both political parties, the friends of prohibition cannot afford to be idle," Judge James said.

"Just the other day a statement was published that contributions were being solicited by the Missouri Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. Competent observers think it likely that this association will continue to work 'under cover,' with a bolder effort at the last, through its strong organization. Although they may not have any real hope of repealing the state's dry laws, they hope to lull the friends of the law into a false sense of security, so that they will be able to point to a comparatively close vote while claiming that the wets were not united."

Premier Barthel Wins Conflict With Parliament Over Money and Forces Adoption of Budget.

Premier Barthel won the money struggle when he threatened to dissolve the parliament unless it adopted the government budget which had been reduced approximately four million dollars by the budget committee.

A vote of misconfidence in the ministry of education and the ministry of the interior, however ,later in the day, precipitated the cabinet's fall.

Washington, Sept. 25.—The farm bloc will make another attempt in the short session of Congress to enact the McNary-Haugen price-stabilization bill, Senator McNary of Oregon said today after a conference at the White House. Because of the shortness of the session and the pressure of business, McNary declared he did not think that any comprehensive legislation could be passed.

Miners Still Trapped; Rescue Workers Busy

Forty-Six Men Entombed Following Cave-In Of Thousands Of Tons Of Earth And Rock.

Ironwood, Mich., Sept. 25.—While frenzied wives, mothers and children moaned and shricked for their loved ones at the entrance of a shaft of an Oliver Mining Co's. mine here today, hundreds of rescue workers labored frantically to save the lives of the forty-six miners entombed under thousands of tons of debris in a cave-in last night.

Forty-three of the men are believed still alive on the eighth level of the mine, but all-night efforts to reach them had failed this morning. Three of the miners were riding in a cage when tons of earth and rock piled into the shaft. It is believed the crashing cage carried its three victims to the bottom of the shaft at the twenty-sixth level, a half-mile under ground.

Pickering, Burlington Junction and Guilford remain the only undefeated basketball teams in the Nodaway County Athletic Association, after the games of yesterday.

The Pickering team again was impressive in its victory over Quitman, winning easily by a score of 37 to 12. This is not to say, however, that the Quitman boys did not make a valiant stand, for they did. In fact, they led during the first quarter.

The Quitman team had been instructed to "watch McKee and Lett." So well was this done that McKee was held to two field goals and Lett to three, but nothing had been said about watching McGinness. This lad broke loose and scored twelve field goals.

As a curtain raiser, the second teams of the two schools played, and Quitman got some measure of satisfaction by winning this game, 6-4.

FROST CAUSES LOSS TO CORN

ONE-FOURTH OF IOWA'S CROP IS DAMAGED.

WHEAT SUFFERS TOO

But Most of Nodaway County Corn Believed Safe—Temperature Here Sinks to 33.

Des Moines, Sept. 25.—One-fourth of Iowa's royal crop of corn lay blackened and in ruins today in the wake of last night's trail of frost.

While most of the corn may be salvaged to a degree, the damage will run into many millions of dollars, Charles D. Reed, director of the weather bureau and crop service, said, but he refrained from making an estimate of the total damage.

The frost came out of the Northwest and spread a freezing veil over the greater part of the state.

Most of the damage was done in the northern and western parts of the state. Similar damage was reported here today from South Dakota and Nebraska.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—Damage to crops over the Canadian wheat belt was estimated at 10 million dollars today as the North and Middle West shivered from the first blast of winter.

The cold wave originated in the Canadian Rockies and is sweeping eastward. Unless counteracted by warm winds from the south, it should reach the Atlantic Coast States by tomorrow, the weather bureau reports.

The frigid wave has resulted in untold damage to crops all over the wheat belt of the Northwest, according to reports reaching here.

All-time records for low temperatures for this season of the year have been shattered. Helena, Mont., reported six above zero.

Topeka, Kan., Sept. 25. — Killing frosts last night and the probability of more tonight were reported today from north central and northwestern Kansas points. Heavy clouds protected the southern and eastern parts of the state, although temperatures in these parts nearly were freezing.

Kansas City, Sept. 25.—Killing frosts in the lowlands in this section were forecast for tonight following the coldest September 25 in the history of the local weather bureau. The temperature dropped to 38 degrees above zero early today.

A slight frost was reported in the lowlands of the county this morning.

The temperature was 33, J. R. Brink, official weather observer said, and under favorable conditions frost forms at a temperature of 35. Last night's wind prevented the forming of frost in most places in the county.

The greater part of the corn is out of danger now, R. A. Kinnaird, former county farm agent, believes. A frost will not greatly damage the corn, he said.

Baker's Cancellation Plan Without Support

Neither Republicans Or Democrats Will Give Serious Consideration To Allied War Debt Proposal.

Washington, Sept. 25.—Senatorial and administrative reaction today indicated that the proposal of Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War and prominent Ohio Democrat, for the cancellation of the allied war debts will not even be seriously considered at the next session of Congress.

Following information from the White House, the treasury and state departments that unding of debts have closed the matter, came today statements from three influential Democratic and Republican leaders in the Senate that neither party will consider the proposal.

EVANGELIST TO TELL HIS SIDE

MELOSH TO BE QUESTIONED BY DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

ORMISTON MAY AID

Los Angeles, Sept. 25.—Harry Melosh, 35-year-old clothing salesman of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Babe Daniels, formerly of Chicago, both of whom confessed in San Francisco that they had negotiated with Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, woman evangelist, to produce a "Miss X" as the companion of Kenneth G. Ormiston, former radio operator at Angelus Temple, at the cottage at Carmel, will be questioned by District Attorney Asa Keyes today.

Under oath, Melosh stated that Mrs. McPherson had promised to take care of him financially for the remainder of his life in the event he could put the deal over. Mrs. McPherson and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, will face a preliminary hearing Monday on charges of conspiracy, it being alleged they conspired to produce false evidence in connection with the Carmel incident.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—Kenneth G. Ormiston, radio operator at Mrs. Aimee Sempel McPherson's Angelus temple at Los Angeles, may be on the way to the coast to aid in unraveling the mystery surrounding the evangelist's alleged kidnapping and strange disappearance, it was learned today.

Ormiston's attorney in Chicago, Edward H. S. Martin, today received a letter from the radio operator stating he was leaving the vicinity of Chicago.

"Do not try to get in touch with me; I am leaving Chicago," the letter said. The attorney refused to reveal from where the letter was written but it is believed it was mailed in a Chicago suburb.

Martin said he had no idea where Ormiston was going and didn't know whether or not the radio operator would aid in the prosecution of the evangelist and denied reports that he had been with Mrs. McPherson in a sea cottage at Carmel, Calif., following her reported kidnapping.

COOLIDGE NOT FOR CHANGES

PRESIDENT RULES COURT MUST ACCEPT RESERVATIONS.

JUSTICE WRITES NO. 5

American Author Of Provision Which Keeps This Country Out Of International Tribunal.

An official announcement at the White House that President Coolidge does not approve the evasive manner in which the powers have dealt with the Senate reservations and that he is not inclined to submit a new protocol to the Senate, thereby inviting a new and more acrimonious party fight, were taken today as pushing the whole project into a more or less permanent pigeonhole.

Some of the unwritten history of the World court fight in the Senate last winter came to light today and afforded an illuminating insight into the present decision not t o enter the court upon any other terms except those emphatically laid down by the Senate.

Justice John Bassett Moore, it was revealed, redrafted the entire set of reservations previously made and was the one who added the famous fifth which the League powers at the Geneva conference have just failed to approve. This reservation provides that the world court shall not render any advisory opinion in an international dispute in which the United States has or claims to have an interest without the consent of this government being specifically given in such a case.

Justice Moore considered such a reservation absolutely necessary to protect the American government from any snap "advisory opinions" that might conceivably be rendered in such contentious matters as immigration, war debts, etc.

Thus ironically enough, it was an American justice on the court who wrote the reservation which now bids fair to keep the United States permanently out of the tribunal.

THE ONLY DAILY PAPER IN NODAWAY COUNTY

Fifty Years Ago

Cooper Gooden, Esq., of Jackson township brought to the Democrat office on last Saturday a half-dozen ears of corn, known as "horse tooth" corn, which certainly would be very hard to excel. Some of the ears are founteen inches in length; on an average, Mr. Gooden says, the ears of this corn are ten inches long. It is eight-rowed. The grain is white and very large; the cob small. It makes good meal, is rich and juicy. The seed was brought from Illinois a few years ago, but the corn has not been much introduced as yet. From what we learn of it, we think it would receive the favor of our farmers. It matures early.

The new firm of Drennan, Williams & Bro. will take possession of the lumber yard on the railroad tracks south of the depot, recently purchased by them from J. C. Waterman & Co., on next Monday, the 25th inst. Mr. Dreanan has had much experience in the lumber business.

The new M. E. Church in Walker's Grove, in Nodaway township, was dedicated on last Sabbeth. The dedicatory sermon was delivered by Bishop Frye, editor of the St. Louis Christian Advocate. A very large audience was in attendance and the sermon was very able and impressive. A total of $600 was raised to liquidate the indebtedness of the church. Several of the young people of Maryville were out at the dedication and enjoyed themselves very much.

Capt. Dooley is now erecting an elegant two-story frame residence on his lots just east of the Maryville public school building.

On account of the recent overflow of the Nodaway River, there will be no camp meeting three miles north of Quitman as has been announced.

The real estate transfers for the week ending September 16 amounted to $38,615.

A new iron front will be placed in the hardware store of Curfman and Shaum.

The St. Joseph Exposition begins on next Monday the 25th inst.

Quite a sprinkle of grasshoppers is reported in Nodaway County.

The waters of the Nodaway are subsiding but a great deal of corn has been damaged by the overflow.

Television Machine Beside Bell's Home

London, Sept. 25.—The first Television machine, from which already better apparatus has sprung to send motion pictures by radio, has been put into an honored place in the South Kensington Science Museum, beside a first machine of Graham-Bell's telephone, beside the awkard coils of wire which Faraday used in his electrical experiments and beside the first Hughes microphone. By placing the Television machine in this select company, the world of science has given its official approval to the Television idea.

The machine is built up of cardboard, lenses from bicycle lamps, slabs of wood and other odds and ends. It was constructed in 1925 by John L. Baird, who nine months later had perfected it so well that he was able to send outlines of objects placed before the machine, and even moving pictures, from one house to another in London without the aid of wires.

Use of Limestone by Farmers Is Increasing

In Jackson County, For Instance, Ground Is Limed Well Before Wheat Seeding—Convenient Way.

Columbia, Mo., Sept. 25.—A widespread movement is under way in Missouri among farmers to use more agricultural limestone this fall and winter than at any previous time. News to this effect has been received by the Missouri College of Agriculture from many parts of the state.

In Jackson county, for instance, many farmers are planning to seed clover on wheat next spring and have limed this fall ahead of heat seeding. "This is a very convenient and successful way for it is necessary to have lime on the ground three or four months before it begins to do any good," says Ira Drymon, county agent.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington—Not only has the dryest of the drys in Congress gone down to defeat in the recent primaries bu so has the wettest of the wets.

The 70th Congress won't eseem like the old institution with Representative Upshaw and Representative John Philip Hill both gone.

They didn't lose in quite the same way, but they both lost.

Upshaw was just plain beaten for a renomination. Hill bit off more than he could chew. He could have been renominated, as a representative, without half trying, but he had senatorial ambitions, and now he isn't going to be a senator or a representative, either one.

Senator O. E. Weller of Maryland has a dandy state organization. He has to have, to be elected to the Senate, as a Republican, from that state.

When Hill Challenged his leadership—for Hill's a Republican, too—Weller turned his organization's guns on Hill. The ambulance corps brought in Hill, a political casualty.

Hill was badly wounded but he wasn't killed. He made a run that will entitle him to subsequent consideration. Weller's shot and shell got him, but it took a lot of shot and shell. Anw for a short time, while they were counting the returns, it looked like anybody's fight

Maryland is a peculiar state. Why should it have a Democratic governor, who wins in a walk, and a Democratic senator, who sweeps the boards every time, and yet have a Republican senator, too, and two Republican representatives, out of a total of six?

"DeLuxe" The Bedspring LUXURIOUS

There is nothing "just as good." Look for the Rome DeLuxe trade-mark on the side rail. It is your guarantee.

How to be Better, Every Day in Every Way

Sound, refreshing sleep is necessary to attain bounding health and vitality. Most people sleep long enough, but many do not sleep well enough.

Sound, relaxed sleep is impossible on the average sagging, spine-twisting, muscle-cramping bedspring. On your choice of bedsprings, therefore, largely depends your good or bad feeling. Be particular, choose a Rome DeLuxe bedspring. It is scientifically designed to accommodate the body perfectly. It cannot sag, cramp the muscles, or cause nerve pressure.

Call today—Ask us to show you the Rome DeLuxe.

"It's the BEDSPRING, not the bed or mattress, that makes all the difference."

33 Persons Attend P. T. A. at Garfield

Thirty-three members were present at the first meeting of the Garfield P. T. A. Circle, held Thursday afternoon at the school. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. G. E. Brumbaugh, president.

Mrs. Hugh Strong resigned as secretary-treasurer because of her appointment as chairman of the program committee, and Mrs. Banner Brummett was elected to fill the vacancy.

At the instance of several members who said they would be unable to attend meetings in the afternoon, it was decided to alternate afternoon and night meetings, providing arrangements can be made for the use of the school at night.

Thursday's meeting was opened with group singing, followed by a program in charge of Mrs. Strong, who gave a history of the national organization. L. E. Ziegler, city superintendent of schools, had been scheduled for a talk, but he was unable to be present, and Mrs. F. A. Bush, president of the Maryville P. T. A., council, reviewed some of the objects of the association. Mrs Mrs. Ursle Crockett read a poem.

The next P. T. A. meeting will be held by the Franklin circle next Thursday.

ELMO ITEMS.

The library of the high school and grades are being equipped with a new supply of books.

Miss Donna Kinman, who teaches High Prairie has been absent for several days on account of illness. Mrs. Leatha Livengood is teaching.

Mrs. McClaren, who teaches the intermediate room, has been absent and Pansy Wood is taking her place.

Mr. Godbey ,the state inspector, visited our school Friday, September 17. He reports everything in good condition, and put our school on the first class list of Nodaway County schools.

A three course dinner was given by the members of the Caesar class of E. H. S. Tuesday at 6 o'clock p. m. at the school building. The party was very delightful in that the members of the class and Miss Ferguson, the teacher, prepared the dinner and served it.

The members of the class are: Phyllis Miller, Stella Kinman, Marcia Johnston, Dorothy Kinman, Maud Ella Lamar, Pearl Dawson and Norma Stafford.

HEDGE COLLEGE

Considering the condition of the weather, we have had a more than excellent attendance record, as there has been on tardies or absences for the first two weeks of school.

This school has a perfect record in the eighth grade graduates who are attending high school.

In the past three years there has been five who have passed the common school course and all of these are in High School. Iola Griffey, Pauline Griffey, Lou Ella Maier and Velma Maier are attending High School at Clearmont and Joy Donald Meek jr., is attending High School at Burlington Junction.

Elmo High School Boasts 20 Seniors

Elmo High School boasts twenty seniors this year. They are: Eldon Younger, Glenn Daugherty, Lodell Ray, Lora Tudder, Beulah Phillips, Chrystal Akin, Marjorie Akin, Mary Johnston, Juanita Abbott, Myrene Castillo, Irene Hamilton, Edna Irwin, Elizabeth Jennings, Harold Crowdes, Herbert Hutchings, Della Calfee and Jim Andy Browning, Elmo; Wayne Adkins, Martha Hurst, and Eldon Spangler, Burlington Junction.

S. T. C. Freshmen to Don Green Caps, Burn Them Later

The freshman class of the State Teachers College has decided by a unanimous vote of the class to set a precedent for all freshmen to wear green caps each year until Thanksgiving or the last football game. At this time a freshman rally will be held and the caps burned. Upper classmen will be excluded from wearing the green caps on any occasion, including football games.

The freshmen will hold another session Monday and a social advisor will be elected from the college faculty.

SCHOOLS NOW AIDCHARACTER

STATE SCHOOL HEAD TELLS OF NEW METHODS.

"RIGHT" MADE EASIER

Every Class And Activity Directed To Assist Development Of Fine Youth.

Jefferson City, Mo., Sept. 25.—"School system, in revising their courses of study, are shaping their programs so that every subject taught and every school activity engaged in make their proper contribution toward the development of character," says Charles A. Lee, State Superintendent of Public Schools.

"The school recognizes as its first aim the development of character through fixing right habits of conduct," says Lee. "The first essential in the development of a sound character is the creation of an environment in which right conduct is the chief basis. The school endeavors to create such an environment in the learning situations it provides. The school aims to make right conduct easier than wrong conduct. Honesty, industry and reverence are not the outcomes of any one religious creed or dogma. They and other virtues that go to make good character, result from right conduct over a period of years.

Progress In Teaching Method.

"The school aims to give all children a good command of the fundamentals—the three R's. Slightly more than half of the time of elementary school children is devoted to work in reading, writing, arithmetic, spelling and language.

"In 1903, several sets of old examination papers, written in 1845, were discovered in the attic of a school building in Springfield, Mass. These examinations were given to children in present-day schools, and the results were compared. These comparisons have shown:

"1. Whatever may be said regarding the schools of half a century ago, these old test papers present indisputable evidence of their inferiority as compared with the schools of the present day.

"2. Anybody who would examine the eight or more sheets of specimen penmanship of the class of 1846 would be almost willing to accept the statement of the School Committee of Springfield in their report of 1853 that 'there are but few in our schools who attain excellence in this beautiful accomplishment (penmanship) or even a moderate degree of skill.' The results of present-day school children seem decidedly superior to those attained under old time methods.

"3. The results of two tests— spelling and arithmetic—seem to indicate that today children are not only better spellers, but that they reason better in arithmetic and are more accurate in ciphering than children of about the same age half a century ago.

Explains New School Systems

"Why are modern schools able to secure better results in the three R's than were achieved a generation ago? They did this by using effective teaching methods unknown a generation ago.

"Take spelling for example," Lee explains. "Schools used to try to teach children 20,000 words or more. 'Learn the dictionary' was the aim. The result was that the average child often failed to learn even the simple words.

"Now we go at it differently. We know, as a result of research, that the ordinary person seldom writes words that are not found in the 2000 most common words in the English language. So children are carefully drilled on a shorter list of words—those they really use. They are taught to use the dictionary in the exceptional cases when they need to use words outside this list.

"In reading, the old wasteful 'alphabetical' method has given place to phonic and sentence methods. Educational research has demonstrated the fallacy of teaching children to read by a method never used by those who read well. The good reader, in fact, actually sees only a part of each word. Good reading is the process of hitting the high spots. The new methods of reading recognize this, and the child from the beginning learns to read words or phrases—not letters.

"Modern schools, using more effective teaching methods, give children a better grasp of the three R's in a shorter period of teaching time. This leaves some time for other instructions essential to successful life in modern civilization."

Paul Diss Tells Experiences on the Flagship California

Paul Diss, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Diss, of Maryville, in the United States navy at San Pedro, Calif., has again written to the History Club of the Maryville High School of which he was a member until his graduation. The letter adequately gives the club members an idea of navy life on the U. S. S. California, the Flagship of the Pacific fleet.

The letter follows:

September 13, 1926.

To the History Club:

"I suppose you have been thinking I have forgotten all about writing, but the truth is I have been waiting until I had something to write about.

"I am enclosing a picture of my ship. It is the U. S. S. California, the Flagship of the Pacific Fleet or more correctly the Battle Fleet. It is one of the latest type of battleships. It was put in commission in 1921 at the Mare Island navy yard at San Francisco.

Well Acquainted.

"While I haven't been aboard very long, I think I am about as well acquainted as the majority of the crew I came aboard just in time to make the trip up to Puget Sound. We left San Pedro on the 16th of June and stopped in San Farncisco over the week-end. All of the way up to Puget Sound we were engaged in maneuvers which took up some time. Upon our arrival at Puget Sound the California left the rest of the fleet and went on to Bremerton, Washington and entered the navy yard.

"We were in the yard a little over a month the first time. We began dismantling most of the equipment and it was not long until the ship looked like a wreck. We were there about a week when we went into dry dock, where we scraped and painted the sides and bottom of the ship. We certainly were relieved when our overhaul was completed because all day long the ship sounded like a boiler factory from the oil drills and hammers used by the workmen.

Lose Anchor.

"Upon completion we shoved off for Seattle. But it seemed as if we were not supposed to leave yet, because we were dropping our bow anchor at Seattle one of the anchor chains snapped and we lost our anchor and ninety fathoms of chain. When the chain was sliding down the dock the end began whipping and it caused some little damage. Since the anchor weighs ten tons and each link of the chain ninety pounds you can imagine how much of a drag there was. So we had to go back to the navy yard again and get a new anchor.

"The fleet re-formed at Seattle, and we were guests of the city for ten days. While we were there the Secretary of the Navy (Wilbur) came aboard and stayed with us until we arrived in San Pedro. On our way down to San Francisco after we left Seattle we had some fleet exercises but they did not delay us very much. We stayed in San Francisco ten days too, and here as in Seattle, we were the guests of the city only more so. While here we were always packed with visitors. From one in the afternoon until five the visitors came and went. As our ship was a flagship and anchored close in we had more visitors than anyone else.

Fleet Steams Out.

"It was a very impressive sight to see the fleet steam out of the Bay. First of all went the destroyers then the battleships and last of all the supply ships. Including all of these there were about seventy in number. Most of the ship held their annual speed run while on their way down to San Pedro. We arrived in San Pedro late one night ahead of the fleet which came in the next day.

"In the fleet there is very keen competition. There are a number of different things to compete in. There is gunnery, engineering, communication and numerous sports. Our ship holds the trophies for highest scores in engineering, gunnery and athletics. In athletics we have a wide field to compete in. There is shooting, boxing, wrestling, track, boating, baseball, football and basketball.

"I must close now. I hope this will give you some idea of where I have been and what I have been doing. I might add that I am in the Radio division and getting along fine.

"Sincerely,

"PAUL F. DISS."

SCHOOL TIME IS ANALYZED

SOMERVILLE AND AN ASSOCIATE MAKE SURVEY.

URGES READJUSTMENT

Lower Grades In Rural Schools Get Too Little Attention When They Need Most.

Leslie G. Somerville, superintendent of schools for Nodaway County, and George A. Selke of the University of Minnesota, have made "An Analysis of the Daily Program for One-Teacher Schools in Missouri," which appears in the current issue of School and Community Magazine.

"It is evident that a new program for one-teacher schools of Missouri is necessary. Possibly the achievement of the pupils would be considerably improved if a fairer amount of time were given to the lower grades," the article states.

"In order to overcome the disadvantage of the large number of grades, a classification of pupils into four groups is recommended. The groups include the following grades: Group D, grades one and two; Group C, grades three and four; group B, grades five and six; group A, grades 7 and 8.

"In the group D, grades one and two meet separately only for reading and numbers. In group C, grades three and four meet separately only for arithmetic; in group B, grades five and six meet together for each subject. Likewise in group A, grades seven and eight are always combined. In agriculture groups B and A meet jointly, although it is recommended that agriculture should be offered only in the three upper grades. All groups combine daily for a fifteen-minute period in which art, handwork or writing is offered. All grades participate in opening exercises.

The article gives various tables by which the rural school may be managed. The following suggestions are only a few given by the analysis:

"Language is not receiving sufficient emphasis.

"Art, handwork and writing are apparently not given enough time.

"Spelling is over-stressed. The percent of time given it by the Missouri program is three times as great as that found by Ayer (a research expert.)

"Alternation not only permits the teacher to reduce the number of classes and to give each child more instruction time, but it also provides for greater social advantages by having more children in each class. There is one danger, however, namely, that promotion may be made by groups rather than by grades."

This is quite apparent, the article points out, "when one considers the annual number of eighth grade graduated from the rural schools in many counties of the state. In alternate years there is a large graduation class followed by a small one. This means that large groups of pupils spend only seven years in the grades or else that a large group is compelled to remain for nine years.

"Where practises and conditions such as described are found, many children are clearly discriminated against."

Illustrating the "discrimination" against the lower grades under the present system, the analysis says:

"A carefully made age-grade table for Nodaway County showed that 52.4 per cent of the children of the strictly rural schools were in the lower four grades. This means that 52.4 per cent of the children, and those least capable of helping themselves, received 34.2 per cent of the total number of class instruction-minutes, while the 47.6 per cent in the upper four grades, those most competent to help themselves, received 65.6 per cent of the instruction-minutes.

"This practice of denying the children in the lower grades the time that the best educational thought believes them entitled to may be one of the very important causes of poor progress in the upper grades. In fairness to the primary children, it should not be permitted to continue."

BASEMENT FINISHED.

The work on the Bloomdale school basement, which was delayed by the rainy weather, has been finished. The furnace in the basement will be an added improvement.

The VANITY CASE

by Carolyn Wells

NEA FICTION

© 1926 by G P PUTNAM SONS

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

In Harbor Gardens, Long Island, in an elaborte bungalow, lived PERRY HEATH and his wife, MYRA.

At the time the story opens the Heaths were entertaining as house guests:

LAWRENCE INMAN, a distant relative of Myra's and, aside from Perry, the only heir to her considerable fortune, and

Myra Heath was a peculiar woman. She was cold, sarcastic. She did not love her husband, but seemed enamored of Inman. She never used cosmetics or dressed in colors. In fact, her hatred of color amounted to a passion. She collected rare old bottles and her latest was a whisky bottle which she was quite proud of but which aroused her artistic husband to scorn.

There is a growing intimacy between Perry Heath and Bunny. Myra, becoming provoked, declares that she has made her will in favor of Inman, cutting Perry off.

That night, after Bunny and Inman retire, Myra Heath alludes mysteriously to Perry's "secret." When Perry goes to bed, Inman comes down stairs, and he and Myra are discovered in each other's arms later by Perry.

The next morning, Mrs. Prentiss, who lives next door, was telling her nephew, Todhunter Buck, of some mysterious lights she had seen the night before in the Heath bungalow. While they are talking a loud scream from the Heath home interrupts their conversation.

That night Perry Heath, stealing downstairs, discovers his wife in Inman's arms and orders the latter out of the house by morning.

The next day the body of Myra Heath is found in the studio by a servant. A candle is burning at her head and feet, there is a big cut in her head and, strangest of all, her face is made up with cosmetics and she is dressed in outlandish colors.

HERRICK, the butler, after calling the doctor, steals some money from a drawer near the body and then dis- "The Work of Perry Heath."

The doctor, when he comes, finds covers, at Myra's feet, a card marked, that the death blow was struck with Myra's cherished whisky bottle. It is discovered then that Perry Heath is gone, his bed unslept in.

She has been killed by a blow with her cherished whisky bottle. When the coroner comes, Inman and Bunny are strangely nervous when made to answer questions. Meanwhile, at the Country Club the murder is the topic of conversation among SAM ANDERSON, AL CUNNINGHAM and others. MRS. PRENTISS, towing her nephew, TODHUNTER BUCK, goes over to the Heaths and invites Bunny to stay at her house next door. Bunny breaks out crying and Buck, at sight of her beauty, is her slave.

Mrs. Prentiss relates having seen mysterious lights appear and disappear, the night before, in the Heath home, and at the inquest testimony brings out the fact that Bunny Moore know of the murder before the maid, who went to her room to inform her.

Finger prints of Inman and Bunny Moore are found on the bottle, and the coroner declares his belief that the murderer will be found in the household. Inman relates having seen a vanity case near the body, but that has disappeared. Physicians declare the rouge was applied to Myra Heath's face after death.

At the Country Club the murder is discussed by SAM ANDERSON, AL CUNNINGHAM, who is trying to solve the mystery, and others, some believing Perry Heath the murderer, others disagreeing. Cunningham suspects Bunny Moore is concealing something, calls on Moore is concealing something, calls on Mrs. Prentiss, who tells him about the mysterious lights. TODHUNTER BUCK, Mrs. Prentiss' nephew, suggests that Perry Heath also may have been murdered.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XX

The bedroom was beautiful, done up in pale grey and silver, quite in keeping with the exquisite taste and love of simplicity that had characterized Myra Heath in life.

Carter sat by a window, doing a bit of mending and she looked up inquiringly as the two came in.

"Where is Mrs. Heath's vanity case?" Cunningham asked, without preliminaries.

"She has several," the maid returned.

"Get them all out," was the order, and from some cupboard and drawers, Carter produced three, all beautiful and costly, and all is such a state of newness that it was plain to be seen they had never been used.

Scanning the three carefully, and noting their newness, Cunningham said, looking about, "Where is the one she used? These have never been even opened."

"Mrs. Heath never used a vanity box, sir," Carter told him. "She had this powder-puff box, here on the dresser, but she never used rouge or lip salve."

"Ah, yes, I see. Go and bring me one from Miss Moore's room. The one she habitually uses."

Carter hesitated a moment, and then catching the austere glance of the man's eye, she went on the errand, and returned with an elaborate gold affair, that had many dangling chains and accessories attached to the main box."

"This is the one Miss Moore uses?" Cunningham asked.

"It is the only one I have seen her use since she has been here," Carter returned.

"I'll keep it, Cunningham said.

When Cunningham and Toddy Buck came downstairs, they learned that Bunny had concluded to go home with Mrs. Prentiss and stay for a time. The combined persuasions of that insistent lady and Larry Inman had resulted in Bunny's acquiescence and she was about to go up for a suitcase and some necessary belongings.

"I needn't take much," she said, pausing at the foot of the stairs, "for I can run back and forth for whatever I need."

She ran along up, and Cunningham, after a few words of farewell, took his departure.

"I'm ready," she said, slowly, to Mrs. Prentiss, "but I can't find my vanity box. It's the queerest thing—I had it in my room just before dinner. I usually have it about with me, but—I left it upstairs, and now I can't find it!"

Toddy Buck hesitated. He knew Cunningham had taken it away, but he was uncertain whether to tell that or not. He concluded to keep silent on the matter for he had told Cunningham he would not interfere with his detective work, and he felt he was not at liberty to divulge the detective's secrets.

Bunny said no more about it, though it was plain to be seen it worried her.

With a quietness unusual for her gay little self, she said good night to Inman and went with Mrs. Prentiss across the lawn to the house next door.

It was also unusual for Bunny to pay so little attention to a presentable and attractive young man, as she showed toward Todhunter Buck.

But Bunny was not herself. Small wonder, considering the shock she had sustained.

Once in Mrs. Prentiss' cherry if old-fashioned living room, Bunny stood, irresolutely, by a table and faced the other two.

Her big blue eyes were appealing. She looked baby-like and helpless.

But Bunny Moore was not helpless. If she looked so, it was nature's fault, not her own.

But she was troubled. And, if truth were known, she had reason to be.

"Mr. Buck," she said, speaking almost for the first time directly to Toddy, "I know perfectly well, you and Mr. Cunningham are shadowing me. I think that is the term the detectives use."

"Why—why, Miss Moore,—" Toddy was dumfounded at this, "why, you must know if I could do anything to help you—"

"You would do just the opposite! Yes, of course I know that!" Bunny's eyes blazed now, and her voice quivered. The poor child was all wrought up, her nerves were on edge, and she felt she must take it out of somebody.

But she looked so lovely, so like a bruised blossom or a broken butterfly, that Toddy Buck forgot all about Cunningham and detective work, and wanted only to enlist in the service of Bunny Moore for the rest of his mortal career.

"Now, you just wait!" he exclaimed, eagerly, "I'm for you—all for you! And I'll put all my cards on the table. Al Cunningham did take your vanity case, or whatever you call it. And, I'm expecting you to tell me why he took it, and why you care so much that he did take it."

Buck looked at her straightforwardly, and to his delight, Bunny returned the glance with equal calmness.

But Mrs. Prentiss, as she herself would have expressed it, could see through a ladder with a hole in it, and she realized that Miss Bunny, whether naive or sly, could wind Mr. Todhunter Buck round her adorable pink little finger, and that she was quite ready to proceed with and enjoy the process.

Also, Mrs. Prentiss had the somewhat unusual quality of a fine sense of relative values. And she sized up accurately and truly, Bunny's sudden little spurt of defiance and she knew that there was something back of it, more than a missing vanity case. She knew that Bunny had something to conceal, and that in her present mood, she would either blurt it out, or would tell some egregious lies.

So she said, quite casually, "You clear out, Tod. Go to bed, or go down town to the movies, or do whatever you like. Miss Moore and I are quite ready to excuse you."

Toddy, catching the gleam of his aunt's commanding eye, immediately said his simple good nights and left the room.

"Now, my dear child," Mrs. Prentiss said, after a moment of tactful silence, "you may go right to bed, or—if you choose, you may talk things over a bit first."

Bunny looked at her with the glance a wise owl might give a country sparrow, and said, courteously:

"Please, Mrs. Prentiss, I think I'll go to my room. You are so good to me—and I do apreciate it,—but it has been a hard day, and—oh, I'm sure you understand! I want to be alone!"

"Of course you do, you poor dear. Now, you come right along with me."

And for the next half hour, Mrs. Prentiss was more like a matron of an orphan asylum or head nurse in a charity ward than anything else.

And little Bunny, exhausted by the unaccustomed strain on her nerves and emotions, tucked herself between the nice percale sheets ,which Mrs. Prentiss "preferred to linen," and, after her kind hostess had departed, thought things over.

Meanwhile, though Toddy Buck had fallen under the spell of Bunny's charm, he had not entirely taken leave of his senses, and he went out for a walk, thoughtfully turning his steps toward the funeral parlors, where now reposed all that was mortal of lovely Myra Heath.

Buck was a methodical sort. He arranged his emotions and predilections in order, as another man might his business affairs.

Toddy saw at once,—he was nobody's fool—that he was either in love or about to fall in it, with Bunny Moore.

He knew, too, that Detective Mott, as well as the amateur Cunningham strongly believed that the exquisite child knew more than she had told about the fearful tragedy at the Heath bungalow.

This, to Buck's mind, did not make the girl any less desirable or attractive as an inamorata, but he did feel that he had to know.

That was one strong differentiation between Mrs. Prentiss and her nephew. Mrs. Prentiss, with her almost uncanny intuition, knew things. Toddy Buck, in his blundering but pig-headed way, believed things, and—had to find out.

So, to the rooms of the Co-operative Casket Co. he went, feeling sure that beyond the great palms and oriental vases of their entresol, he would find the man he was looking for.

Nor was he disappointed. In a private room, of which there were several, he found closeted Al Cunningham and Detective Mott in earnest consultation.

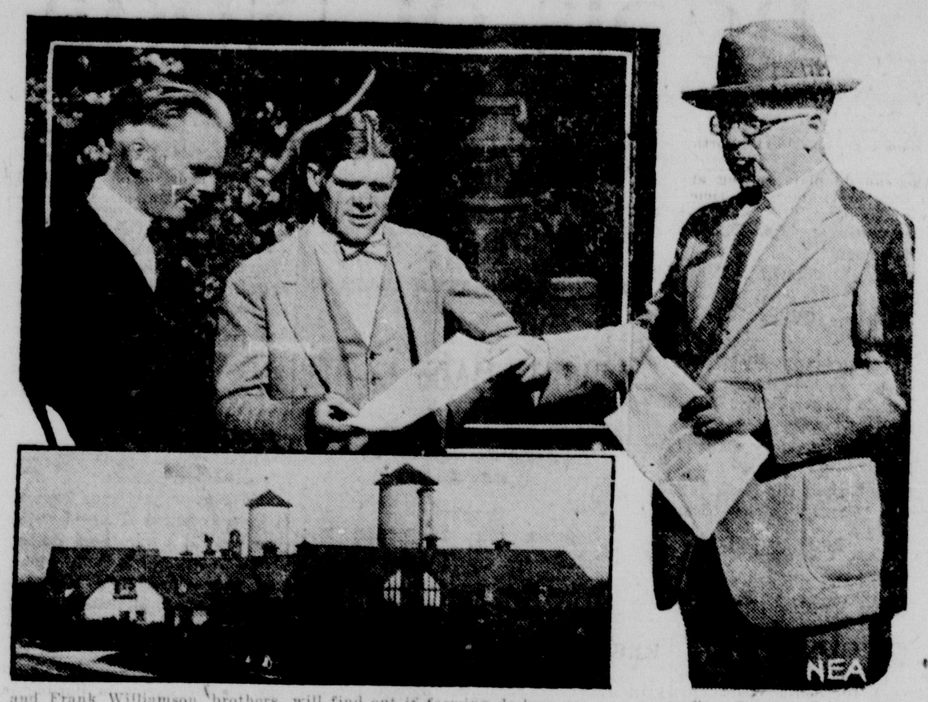
Can Farming De Luxe Pay? They'll Find Out



Mark and Frank Williamson, brothers, will find out if farming de luxe can pay a profit. Senator James Couzens of Michigan will let them run his 900-acre farm near Detroit for five years, rent and tax free, on condition that they make it pay. Photo shows Senator Couzens (right) giving the contract to the brothers, Mark is at the left and Frank is in the center. Inset shows the $125,000 barn on the Couzens farm.

MIDDLE-EAR DEAFNESS CAN BE RELIEVED

Nasal Tissues Must Be Made Healthy and Then the Eustachian Tube Cleared Before Any Cure Is Possible.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

In describing the tiny bones of the ear, I have spoken of the stirrup bone. It is so called because of its resemblence to the stirrup of an army saddle.

The base or foot-plate of this bone fits into an opening in the skull in such manner that the foot plate can play to and fro in the opening. In this way the vibrations of the ear-drum are carried through the little bones to the foot-plate of the stirrup-bone. This is made to vibrate and it communicates its movements to the fluid in the inner ear.

This fluid, in turn, is agitated, and the endings of the nerve of hearing which float in the fluid are stimulated. Then the brain takes up the impulses and translates them into meaning sounds.

In a very brief and unscientific way I have told you how the outside vibrations passing through the canal of the ear to the drum are transmitted to the nerve of hearing. Unless the drum and little bones are freely movable and flexible, the sound waves are not carried as they should be.

Any catarrhal condition which inflames and thickens the lining membrane of the ear will interfere with the vibrations of the drum, bones and inner ear fluid. Deafness, more or less profound, is the inevitable result.

Acute catarrh, as acute colds are called, may not permanently impair the hearing. There may be temporary thickening of the nose and ear tissues, but recovery is likely to be complete. You may have a "stopped up" feeling in the ears and feel deaf for a few days.

Repeaded and neglected colds are different. There is more and more inflammation of the mucous membranc. Then the condition is known to the doctors as a "chronic catarrh. This means that the tissues of the Eustachian tube and inner ear will become thicker and thicker as time goes on, just as the tissues of the nose become thicker and it becomes difficult to breathe freely.

It is not to be expected that "catarrhal deafness," the form of deafness you get in the way I have just described, can be relieved unless the nasal tissues are first made healthy. The first step in successful treatments is to get the nose back to fairly normal condition.

Then the Eustachian tube—the passageway to the ear—is opened by inflation and other treatment. Skillful treatment of the middle ear will be applied. Under expert care much can be done to overcome the effects of chronic middle ear catarrh. Early treatment is essential—every month of delay makes it more difficult to improve the deafness.

Answers To Health Queries.

C. Q. Q.—What would cause a murmur in the heart? Could it be due to indigestion? Would too much exercise be responsible?

A.—Usually due to weakness of heart valves and may be caused by infectious disease such as inflammatory rheumatism. Have your doctor advise the treatment necessary. No, although indigestion often affects the heart action. No.

T. B. Q.—What is the cause of high blood pressure? Should I do heavy house-cleaning? I am fifty-nine years of age and in normal health otherwise.

A.—Indiscretion in diet, constipation or possibly a kidney condition are all responsible causes. Careful attention to the diet and general care should be helpful in bringing the pressure down to normal. Your doctor will advise you, since each case demands specific attention.

Horse not to Disappear Before Autos Increase

Stockholm, Sept. 25.—Horses will never be entirely superseded by automobiles, declared Dr. Axel Paalman, internationally known expert on hoof diseases, upon his retirement from his professorship at the Swedish Veteninary Institute of Stockholm after 25 years of service.

Race horses are more popular than ever and for short hauls the horse van has proved more economical than the motor truck, said the venerable teacher, citing American statistics as evidence. For certain farm work he also believes that horses will always hold their own with tractors, which are used more and more in Sweden. Love for horses is also so inbred in the human race and the association has been so close and has lasted so many thousands of years that a perfectly horse-less age will be long in coming, thinks Prof. Paalman.

CLOSING GRAIN REVIEW.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—It was a quiet session on the Chicago Board of Trade today. There was little change in prices, save in wheat and the volume of trading was light, even on a short session.

Wheat closed ¾ to 1½ cents lower on continued favorable weather news from the Canadian Northwest and because of the weak Liverpool cables.

The year's first frost stimulated corn only fractionally, that cereal closing unchanged to ¾ cent higher.

Bullish reports of oats damage in the shock continued to reach the board but failed to affect prices, which were unchanged to ⅛ cent higher.

Provisions sagged with the hog market.

Colonials Quit Theater Because Actors Swear

London, Sept. 25.—Two earnest Colonials from South Africa, visiting London for the first time, have been forced to quit going to theaters, because—as they wrote to the papers they were "shocked at the cursing and swearing that took place on the stage."

"For the rest of our visit we shall stick to the cinema. The swearing on the English stage is to our way of thinking, something terrible."

"An English artist arriving in South Africa is told to cut out the swearing."

Hunger Striker Refused Permission to Perform

Szeged, Hungary, Sept. 25.—On the ground that voluntary hungering is useless the local police authorities have forbidden all exhibitions in Szeged by hunger artists.

A Szeged lady, Kaethe Markow, wanted to exhibit herself living in a glass cage while she starved herself, as dozens of people have been doing in other European cities.

The police intervened and forbade the exhibition. When she protested, the police issued a statement that hunger exhibitions are non productive except to the performers.

An impromptu program was given, which afforded much amusement and entertainment.

The young women of the audience, composed the choir. The beginning number was a song by the audience, followed by prayer, by the Rev. Mr. Smallwood. Mrs. Denton McNeal gave a reading. The Ladies Aid Society was called upon for a song and the selection met with smiling approval. Mrs. A. C. Mowry responded to the request for a vocal solo and as an encore she gave a whistling solo, with Miss Zimmerman at the piano.

A request was made for a song by the eight women representing the Christian Church, and they gave an appropriate selection.

A piano duet, was next. The artists, were Misses Louise McGinnis, and Dorothy Lockhart. Then came a unanimous appeal for a song by the men in the audience, without doubt, this chorus of twenty or more voices, was most heartily enjoyed. Mrs. Fred Kemper at the piano. Mr. Carl Helzer gave a vocal selection with Mrs. Helzer at the piano. Last was the favorite sacred song, "The Old Rugged Cross" sung by Misses Zimmerman, Williams, Lemely, Snelling, Mrs. Mendenhall and Professor Wallace. With this number the program was concluded.

From a free will offering a handsome Bible was purchased and presented to Mr. and Mrs. Smallwood, as a token of esteem, and well wishes from all present. Mrs. Smallwood responded to the presentation of the Bible, expressing the sincere appreciation for the interest and kindness of the Graham people. At the close of the social hour, refreshments were served.

Why Overland's amazing Price Cut are possible

—on the two most successful cars of their size and price class

Retail sales during July and August were the largest in Willys-Overland history. Over 39,000 were sold in these two months.

The original Whippet production schedule laid out in July called for 500 cars a day. Within 60 days it has been increased to 650. And now, at these amazing new low prices we anticipate a volume of 1000 Whippets a day—and from every present indication it will be quickly attained.

Sales of the Overland Six have also been gaining in tremendous volume. Over 60,000 were made last year. Each month sees another record broken. And at these startling, low prices we believe Overland Six production will reach over 100,000 this year.

Big volume makes low prices possible. Low prices bring big volume. This in brief is the economic reason behind this amazing price reduction.

If orders are placed at once prompt deliveries can be made. The time to buy is NOW!
